Our tips for managing uncertainty and change in 2021

2020 brought a lot more uncertainty than most of us are used to dealing with. As human beings, we all want to feel safe and have a sense of control over our lives and wellbeing, but this is not always possible.

Some people may enjoy being spontaneous and unpredictable, but for others this can make them feel anxious, sad or angry.

If you're feeling overwhelmed, it's important to know that you're not alone – everyone is in the same boat! We are all going to have to get better at learning how to manage uncertainty.

No matter how helpless or overwhelmed you may feel, you can control how you choose to manage your anxiety and face the future with confidence. What can you do to feel better prepared to cope?

Call 01442 454060 or text SUPPORT to 07860 065195 with your name and age to connect with one of our team.

Why do I feel sad or anxious? Everything changed so quickly and almost all of us missed out on something we had been looking forward to. Some of us may have even lost a loved one. Sudden loss can make our emotions go up and down and it can take a long time to adjust to this. Don't put pressure on yourself to feel 'normal' again, it will take everyone different lengths of time to adjust to change.

Know that this will pass! People are very resilient and we always find ways to cope with change. Even after going through huge amounts of uncertainty, we find new ways to manage and adapt!

Practice some relaxation techniques. Relaxation can be helpful to help process your feelings. Some people like to do some exercise (why not try going for a walk or trying a yoga tutorial on YouTube?), listening to music or doing something creative. If you find that you feel more stressed after looking at Instagram, perhaps try to have an hour without screens to unwind.

Why do I feel angry? It is normal to feel angry, frozen or confused when faced with change or uncertainty. When you don't know how long life will be different or how the changes will affect you or your loved ones, it's easy to imagine the worst-case scenario.

Take control of your own actions. What positive thoughts and behaviours can you take on to help you manage the change? If you want to learn some useful coping tips, why not join a SfYP Emotional Wellbeing Project?

Talk to someone. Think about how you are feeling. Are you sad? Confused? Angry? Try to share these emotions with someone, or even just write them down. SfYP can provide extra support with managing your feelings if you feel that it would be helpful to tell someone that you don't see every day.

Acknowledge and accept your feelings. You may worry that this will make you feel worse, but identifying your feelings can help to recognise that they are a reaction to uncertainty and help you feel more in control.

How much exercise should I do? Under 18s should aim to take part in moderate physical activities for at least one hour a day. This means working hard enough to raise your heartbeat and breathe harder, but still being able to talk.

It's not always easy to find the motivation to get outside and exercise, especially when sports clubs are still on hold, but it can have many benefits for both your physical and mental health. Evidence shows that young people who are more physically active have more confidence, higher self-esteem, less anxiety and stress and better social skills. It can also help to increase your concentration, make your sleep quality better and improve your academic grades.

Safety: Try to exercise in daylight and make sure you wear bright or reflective clothes. Stay aware of your surroundings and any traffic. Tell someone where you are going and when you should be back.

Don't put too much pressure on yourself. An hour of exercise a day is ideal, it may not always be achievable. Any opportunity to move around and be active is good, so try to do a small amount each day.

Running: The NHS 'Couch to 5K' is a free running app for complete beginners. It helps you to gradually build up your fitness and stamina.

How to keep active at home

What type of physical activity should I do? You should aim to do two types of physical activity: aerobic exercise and exercises to strengthen your muscles and bones. Aerobic exercises are any activities that raise heart rate and make you breathe harder.

Whatever your level of physical ability, there are options that are right for everyone. Organisations like the Activity Alliance can support you with having a more active lifestyle.

Get outside: Spending time in nature can benefit both your mental and physical wellbeing and can even help with anxiety and depression. Going for a walk or cycle is a good way to stay active and also safely socialise with a friend.

Get creative: You don't need an expensive gym membership or pricey activewear to stay active. YouTube is a great resource to find exercise tutorials that you can do at home, especially yoga, Pilates, aerobics and cardio workouts.

Making plans for your future?

Even without the pandemic, planning for your future can feel like a real challenge and sometimes even long-term goals can suddenly change. Perhaps you started a college course or apprenticeship and realised that it wasn't for you, or maybe you have completed your school education but struggled to find work because of Covid-19.

SfYP Personal Advisers can support you with researching your options, making decisions, or even suggesting new possibilities that you might not have previously considered.

Not in education, training or employment?

SfYP's Pathways to Success programme is designed to support young people who are not in education, work or further training, such as apprenticeships, or those who may become so in the future. SfYP Personal Advisers will support you on a one-to-one basis to identify your skills and interests, work on your CV, practise your interview skills, and boost your employability.

What have other young people said about SfYP's career support?
